Editorial Review

Review

See why "The Green Coat: A Tale from the Dust Bowl Years" is one of the most popular required summer reading books for schools and homeschool families and has become part of the curriculum in middle school everywhere!

Even though written for young people, I would rate this novel an excellent read for any age. The characters are real and multi-dimensional, and the historical details are vibrant and descriptive. I could almost feel the gritty dust between my teeth as I read about the dust storms. It is convincingly told from the point of view of a twelve-year-old girl, who is able to surmount her own very real suffering and grow in compassion and concern for others. I would recommend it very highly for children, both as an entertaining story and an educational tool for teaching history. --An Amazon Customer

About the Author

Rosemary McDunn is a middle school teacher humbly surprised by the runaway success of her debut novel "The Green Coat: A Tale from the Dust Bowl Years." When McDunn set out to pay tribute to her mother through this engrossing work of historical fiction, she never expected it to become required reading in classrooms and homeschool curriculums around the country. Rosemary simply created a fictionalized account of the dust bowl years and, as a teacher, included vocabulary words and thought-provoking questions in the end of the book "in case" a teacher picked it up! Mrs. McDunn continues to teach middle school and looks forward to writing a sequel to this, her debut novel, in the near future.
