Why Tissue Salt deficiencies affect your health

How to recognise deficiencies in your face - self facial analysis

Why our food is depleted of Tissue Salts

The difference between Tissue Salts and vitamins and how they work in conjunction with each other

How to restore the body to its natural balance for optimum health

The effect of mineral deficiencies on psychosomatic conditions

How to get relief from allergies and cravings

Offers you treatment for cuts, burns, abrasions, scar tissue and many more

Understand why natural is better

This book tells you what tissue salts are and how they work. To support this; there are case studies, colour photos showing facial symptoms, a psychosomatic profiling for people with Tissue Salt deficiencies and a handy A to Z of complaints with over 700 symptoms and treatments using tissue salts.

Driven by her passion to help as many as possible, and inspired by what she herself had learnt of the value of this system of therapeutics, Eva F. Schoenfeld was motivated to write this inspiring treatise on Nature's dynamic healing remedies, the biochemical Tissue Salts, as introduced to the world by the creative genius of Dr W H Schuessler.

Every one of these inorganically-sourced remedies is supplied in organic and natural state and form in the vegetables and fruit we eat. They are natural and essential constituents of the normal, healthy growth and life of organic beings. But as Eva so eloquently discusses – in our present day we are exposed to an environment which is almost universally contaminated. By having to depend for our nourishment upon foods grown in soils rendered nutrient deficient, it is almost inevitable that we will experience dis-ease, disabilities and a whole gamut of psychosomatic ailments.

Not only do the twelve essential Tissue Salts treat and benefit the body with their biochemical healing properties, when correctly manufactured (according to the strict and precise requirements of homoeopathic trituration), they also contain the homeopathically-produced vibrational quantum energy embedded in them. This time and effort demanding pharmaceutical operation may legitimately be executed only by manufacturers approved by South Africa's Medicines Control Council.
